The Association for Skilled and Technical Sciences is the national organization for instructors, administrators, teacher educators, industry partners, and supporters of the Skilled and Technical Sciences programs. Trade and Industry beliefs and philosophies are being retained but will be enhanced through efforts of the new organization to promote, expand and improve the content of the disciplines traditionally found in the Trades field. The new organization will also encourage additional disciplines to be represented and will further refine the nature of the workplace with the appropriate representation. We want to be your professional organization. ASTS members are typically members of ACTE and SkillsUSA as well as TSA and other established groups.

Check out the latest happenings on the ASTS website astsonline.org. If you have informational items you would like to see posted on the web site or have instructional techniques and/or equipment and tool suggestions for programs, please feel free to submit them by contacting Ed Sullivan using the e-mail web link provided asts@va.metrocast.net
